Vic Stonebraker, right, and Gary Haas, testing Legionnaires.

CENTER'S STAFF TESTS LEGIONNAIRES

Several members of the Hospital Center's clinical and laboratory staff performed over 120 pulmonary function and blood tests on Pennsylvania American Legionnaires at their annual convention in Philadelphia recently.

Gary L. Lattimer, M.D., Chief of our Infectious Disease Section, headed the team which did testing on three groups of Legionnaires:

- Group A: Legionnaires who attended the July, 1976 Philadelphia convention and were officially diagnosed with symptoms of the disease;
- Group B: Legionnaires at the same convention who showed some symptoms of the disease;
- Group C: A control group; Legionnaires who did not attend the convention two years ago.

Pulmonary function analyzing was done by Victor Stonebraker, Technical Director, Pulmonary Function Lab; and Gary Haas, Senior Staff Technician in the lab.

Sharon Boley, M.T., and summer lab intern, Arlene Randall, drew blood from the Legionnaires.

Dr. Lattimer, who is working with his associate, Luther Rhodes, III, M.D., John P. Galgon, M.D., Chief of Pulmonary Disease Section, and Clinical Microbiologist, John Salvanti, Ph.D., will analyze test results and forward them to participating Legionnaires and their physicians.

According to Dr. Lattimer, the disease may cause long term lung disability. Legionnaires' Disease strikes as a severe form of pneumonia and has a high mortality rate.

Having been involved with the treatment and follow-up care of local victims of the disease, the investigators are highly optimistic about the success of their research.

LEGIONNAIRES' DISEASE TEST HERE

Antigen Material used for Legionnaires' Disease testing is now available to the Center's laboratory. The material is available because Gary L. Lattimer, M.D., Head of the Section of Infectious Diseases, completed a course in lab procedures for diagnosing Legionnaires' Disease.

By taking the Atlanta based Center for Disease Control sponsored course, Dr. Lattimer is extended the privilege of receiving antigen material for Legionnaires' Disease testing.

According to Dr. John J. Shane, Director of the Clinical Laboratories, the release of the antigen means that an antibody can be produced locally. Therefore, the lab now has all the material, equipment, and expertise and is to be approved as a Legionnaires' Disease Testing Center.

William Gee, M.D.

William Gee, M.D., has been elected to the Society for Vascular Surgery. Harry Kaupp, M.D., Chief of the Vascular Surgery Division, is also a society member. Dr. Gee, Director of the Non-Invasive Vascular Laboratory at the Center, has been on the Center's staff since November, 1977.

Dr. Gee completed an internship and residency in General Surgery at the Naval Hospital in St. Albans, New York. He completed a Fellowship in Vascular Surgery and was an instructor in Surgery at the University of California following which he was an Assistant Professor of Surgery at George Washington University.

Dr. Gee was Chief of Division of Vascular Surgery at the National Naval Medical Center and a Captain in the Medical Corps, U.S. Navy.

In the new book, Non-Invasive Diagnostic Techniques in Vascular Disease, Dr. Gee authored two chapters: "Physiologic Principles of Ocular Pneumoplethysmography" and "Clinical Application of Ocular Pneumoplethysmography."

F. Geoffrey Toonder, M.D., has recently been Board Certified in Thoracic Surgery. He is also Board Certified in General Surgery and by the National Board of Medical Examiners.

Dr. Toonder received his Medical Degree from the University of Buffalo (S.U.N.Y.), interned at the University of Utah Medical Center, and completed his Residency in General Surgery at St. Joseph Hospital in Denver, Colorado. He served as a Naval Flight Surgeon for two years, completed a Fellowship in Cardiovascular Research at the University of Colorado Medical Center and a Fellowship in Thoracic and Cardiothoracic Surgery at Baylor University Medical Center in Dallas. In addition to his membership on the Hospital Center Staff, Dr. Toonder is a member of the staffs of the Allentown, Sacred Heart and Quakertown Hospitals.

NURSING REORGANIZES

The Nursing Services Division of the Hospital Center is undergoing a reorganization of its management structure. According to Florence Brown, Director, the aim of the reorganization is to decentralize the management function into teams comprised of a supervisor, unit instructors and head nurses. These teams will be responsible for management of the units.

Dawn Costello, Ed.D., Associate Director Nursing Education, will be leaving the Center. Dr. Costello's plans include spending more time with her family, and the possibility of going into private educational consulting or an academic career.

MEDIC ALERT

Approximately one in every five persons has some type of medical problem. What happens when, because of unconsciousness, shock or loss of speech, that person is unable to communicate?

A diabetic could be neglected and die because he was thought to be intoxicated. A shot of penicillin could end the life of one who is allergic to it.

In administering emergency medical treatment, the special problem of the victim is not always known.

That's where Medic Alert can help. The Medic Alert emblem, worn on a bracelet or necklace, plus a wallet card containing personal and medical information and an emergency answering service are known the world over.

The Hospital Center has endorsed the Medic Alert program since we opened in September, 1974.

Program information is available throughout the hospital and the educational program for patients is being expanded.

Medic Alert application forms will be distributed to locations on each nursing station, the Outpatient Registration Desk, the Cardiac Rehabilitation Unit, the Short Procedure Unit, and the Front Lobby Admitting Area.

More information concerning the program may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Mary Strzelecki, R.N., at the Nursing Office, or Elwood Ehr Gott, Administrative Assistant for Ambulatory Services, Extension 2129.

Medic Alert applications can be ordered from Bulk Stores on Hospital Supply Requisitions.
